* This case is administratively insolvent. The sole asset administered by the Trustee consisted of a residential condominium commonly known as Unit #203, 2201 North Cleveland, Chicago, Illinois. Net sale proceeds funds therefrom were less than anticipated due to debtor's failure to fully disclose unrecorded lien claims against said real estate in combination with higher than anticipated costs to redeem said real estate from prior sales thereof by the Cook County Treasurer to satisfy unpaid back taxes. In addition, debtor repeatedly failed to cooperate with the Trustee in the administration of the estate which resulted in higher than anticipated costs of administration in the form of attorney fees to compel such cooperation. Finally, anticipated receipts in the approximate amount of $8,000.00 from the liquidation of an unencumbered late-model motor vehicle were not received due to debtor's unauthorized post-petition sale of the same and the Trustee's inability to recover the sale proceeds from debtor resulting from the latter's inability to repay the same. In summary, net receipts were less and costs of administration were more than anticipated by the Trustee which ultimately resulted in an administratively insolvent estate.
